Come and join us to discuss....

How big a threat is global warming to the planet?

Can we save the planet and still fly abroad for our holidays?

What can we do now?

Will the future mean wars over water as well as oil?

How can we make sure the poor as well as the rich survive?

What will happen to the people of the South if life becomes unsustainable?

How can we build a movement to force governments to act?

This unique forum will bring together activists from environmental and solidarity campaigns, from socialist and green political parties as well as international speakers, to debate the urgent questions raised by global warming and environmental destruction.
